IN THE THEATRES

JACKSON'S

Much interest is being exhibited in the first appearance here to-night at Jackson's theatre of Max Fiedler, as the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On its previous visits the orchestra had two famous men, the first time Wilhelm Gericke and the series of the conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. On its previous visits the orchestra had two famous men, the first time Wilhelm Gericke men, the first time Wilhelm Gericke and the second time Dr. Karl Muck, and from all accounts Mr. Fiedler is and from all accounts Mr. Fiedler is a worthy successor to both of them. Moreover, Mr. Fiedler has made a reputation such as has been held in the past only by Theodore Thomas as maker of programmes. Certainly the programme that he has arranged for Bridgeport will stand as a model of the field of the first number is the or its kind. The first number is the etunning prelude to "The Mastersing-ers of Nuremberg" by Wagner. Here a short space of a few minutes s greatest "musical comedy" that ver written. In the music is was ever written. In the music is heard the pompous importance of the Mastersingers, the beautiful love passages between Walter and Eva, the bickerings and quarrelings of Beckmesser, winding up with the triumph of the new art which the young Franconian knight brought to Nurmberg. Next follows Tschalkowsky's Pathetic" symphony, the "Swan ong" of the most tragic figure in todern music. The "Pathetic" today is unquestionably the greatest of odern symphonies and by the same is the most popular. Highly it, it appeals to all classes of music vers. Grieg's "Peer Gynt" suite is miliar to all for it is one of the ost hackneyed of modern works and Mr. Fieder is to be thanked for oring it to its proper place, for his wonderfully picturesque music is mong the most beautiful in modern erformances as the Boston ambers will be the great "Leonora" verture No. 3 by Beethoven. The oncert starts at $45 o'clock.

Western Beef Finds Good Eastern Market

Western beef is coming into its own. Not over a decade ago eastern buyers purchased range-bred steers only when they were unable to fill their feed pens from other sources, and us-ually offered a much lower price for this class of stock than they were wil-ling to pay for that secured from oth-

Experience has taught these buyers however, that western range-bred steers are usually in the very best of health. They have a splendid frame upon which to bull, are well muscled and boned, and being accustomed to and boned, and being accustomed to the rigors of the western climate, continue to put on flesh in the eastern feed pens when cattle from other sections, being fed under identical conditions, are losing flesh on account of the inclement weather conditions. This western steer only demands that he be given plenty of good fresh water and sufficient feed so that he may never be hungry and he will always give a good account of himself and return many dollars in profits to the feeder when he is sold for the block in the spring.

an exterior finish that other cattle. Inching the same health and ruggedness fail to show. This makes the western steers ready sellers on the market, and after they have been butchered the percentage of the weight of the dressed carcass over that of other steers under the same conditions is so perceptible as to impediately attract the attention of Jane Gaffney. conditions is so perceptible as to immediately attract the attention of those keen, far-sighted men who handle the yard end of the business.

The settlement of the West is rapidly reducing the amount of available range and is forcing the cattle to go higher and higher into the hills in search of forage. This is greatly utilizing the ranges within the National Forests and every endeavor is being made by the Forest Service to open hitherto inaccessible ranges by the construction of trails and bridges. and unused arid ranges by the development of water. In these higher elevations the grass is usually much finer in quality and more nutritious, while the climate is much more rigorous; both of which conditions result in the animals being in better health and having more solid flesh when placed on the feeder markets in the fall. This fall has seen large numbers of the range-bred steers, most of which come from ranges within National Forests, topping the feeder Mary Ann Huck to John Bodney.

ret in quality and more nutritions, while the climate is much more rigorous; both of which conditions result in the animals being in better health and having more solid flesh when placed on the feeder markets in the fall. This fall has seen large numbers of the range-bred steers, most of which come from ranges within National Forests, topping the feeder markets at all points where feeder steers are sold.

So great has become the demand for cattle of the quality mentioned that hundreds of stockmen throughout the West are selling their bunches of toxock cattle and are beginning to handle steers exclusively. On the old ranges where a few years ago one was accustomed to see large herds of cows and calves, you will find today equally large bunches made up entirely of sieers, some of which may perhaps have come from Old Maxico, some from Texas, while Arizona and New Mexico usually furnish their quota. These steers are brought into these western ranges at from eighteen months to two years old. They become sufficiently matured so that they may be taken to market.

The demand for cattle of this kind is greater than the supply and as in sill other cases where the demand is greater than the supply and as in sill other cases where the demand is greater than the supply and as in sill other cases where the demand is greater than the supply approached the steer business, one can easily accretain through conversation with any one of the western stockmen who make this a business. They will tell you that they have made more money in the western stockmen who make this business. They will tell you that they have made more money in the last two or three years in handling steers than they made in ten years in handling strictly stock cattle.

At Jackson's Theatre Wednesday, matinee and night, the famous play "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" will be presented with Mr. Frederick W. Pierce in the leading role supported by Miss Marie Rostell and a care-fully selected company. Mr. Pierce's work in this nerve-racking play is without a doubt extrecely fine. He has received very complimentary notices from both press and public. The remaining members of the company will be seen to excellent advantage. Everyone should improve this opportunity of seeing this world-wide known play that has been talked so much about everywhere. There will be see increase in the regular popular. much about everywhere. Elsie Janis in "The Fair Co-Ed." Elsie Janis in George Ade's new three act musical comedy, "The Hoy-den," is the attraction announced at Jackson's theatre next Thursday evenin. Miss Janis is a dainty com-edienne, whose metier is giving wonderfully amusing caricature imitations of noted American actors and actresses in their most famous roles. In "The Fair Co-Ed," she plays the part of a young schoolgirl, a typical tom-boy, who is the only girl student in a small college which has just adopted the policy of co-education of the sexes. At the commencement festivities the "Co-Ed" disguises herself as a navy cadet and meets with some surprising adventures during that festal period. Miss Janis has made a tremendous individual success in "The Fair Co-Ed" during its olonged run at two theatres, the Knickerbocker and the Criterion in the matural digestive fluids will never be missed. The Dyspepsia uf Old Age and Healthy Life.

There is a process known as metabolism going on constantly in the body, and by which the tissues are built up, and after having served their purpose in the physical economy, are torn down and cast off. So long as the due relations between waste and supply is maintain ed, nutrition, and the various functions of the body are continued. But after middle life and in old age there comes a time when waste exceeds supply, and when the various ele-ments which constitute the different huids, tissues and organs no longer hold their due proportion, and the principle of life itself becomes enfeebled, the body no longer having power to assimilate new material as it once did.

of digestion, absorption and assimila-tion, and the system being deprived of its full quota of nutriment, slowly wears out. If the nutritive and digestive processes of old people could be maintained unimpaired, life could be prolonged almost indefinitely. There are many old persons in whose stomachs the gastric function is almost entirely suspended. When this trouble occurs, the problem is, how to digest the food and get along without the natural Stomach Juices. There is but one way to overcome the effects of this condition, and that is to supply artificially to the stomach a powerful digestive substance to take the place of the juices which it falls to secrete naturally.

As old age creeps on, all the func-tions gradually fail, especially those
